PETITIONER'S SUPPORTING DECLARATION

In accordance with Texas Civil Practice & Remedies Code § 132.001, the following unsworn declaration is made:

My name is Gwendolyn Ulijasz-McKemie. My date of birth is May 27, 1978, and my address is 5609 La Foy Blvd., Dallas, Texas 75209. I am above the age of eighteen years, and I am fully competent to make this declaration.

I am the Petitioner in this case. The facts stated in this Declaration are within my personal knowledge and are true and correct.

Jason McKemie is Respondent, and we were married on June 22, 2024.

I am in fear of Jason McKemie based on his manic behavior and drug use that have escalated over the past few months. Jason has become more verbally abusive, and his threatening behavior has escalated. As a result, I have left the marital home as I no longer feel safe in the same proximity with him.

Unbeknown to me during our courtship, Jason has been a consistent drug user and also has a neurological diagnosis that he has left untreated. On the morning of our wedding ceremony on June 22, 2024, I found out that Jason McKemie had been participating in daily drug use and had serious addiction issues. Jason admitted to me on the morning of our wedding, that this had been present in this life, had been ongoing, and gotten worse in the weeks prior to our wedding ceremony. Since that time to the present, Jason's behavior has evolved from what I would characterize as "unusual" in March/April of 2024, to "troubling" in the week leading up to the wedding, to "concerning" and then "frightening and aggressive" thereafter. His mania, stalking, and aggression is escalating and has peaked in the last two weeks.

During the time Jason lived in my home at 4223 Travis Street from August 2023 until March 2023, Jason's behavior was balanced, loving, and doting. While he stayed up late some nights, I recall that it was within reason. Jason had assured me that his previous drug use was in the past. This was important to me because I had not had a drink in almost ten years, did not use drugs, and I am still active and sponsored in Alcoholics Anonymous.

I had no knowledge that Jason was already a daily drug user when our wedding ceremony took place on June 22, 2024. I only saw that his behavior changed in the months leading up to the wedding. I attributed it to a few other significant stressors going on at that time. He had expressed stresses with his job over the 10 months prior to the wedding and he was frustrated. We also had to unexpectedly relocate on short notice (8 weeks notice) before our wedding. This was the result of a broken pipe that flooded that home. He was anxious and irritable, smoking more but I attributed it to the job, unexpected move and wedding planning.

On June 22nd we wed. I returned to work for a few days after my wedding but took time off on July 6th. During this time, I noticed that Jason's behavior was becoming more alarming, and I was concerned. He was keeping extremely late nights, would leave food all over the floor in the kitchen, would always seem to be losing his balance and was perspiring so much in his sleep that I would have to change the linens frequently. I noticed that Jason was taking about 8 different prescription medications daily. When I questioned him about this, his explanation was that the "meds hit him wrong." As things continued, I was concerned that he might be taking drugs and tried to confront him several times, but it ended in either dismissiveness or prolonged aggressive arguments.

In September Jason's verbal abuse became more frequent. He started calling me names regularly. I kept a running list because I knew that something was very wrong and getting worse. I had not seen or heard him behave abusively before. He repeatedly calls me a "bitch," "evil," "selfish," a "punisher," and a "liar," and "Satan." Several times he has call me a "cunt" or a "cuntbag." He walks around the house muttering some of this and also at night. In addition to the verbal abuse, Jason has also started to shop incessantly. He seems to have developed a shopping addiction as a part of his manic episodes.

On September 5, 2024, Jason woke me up at 3am in the bedroom. He was crying and yelling and walking in a small circle between my side of the bed and the dresser. He screamed that he "could not see." He said this over and over and was hysterical. Once I got him in bed, he told me he had bought GHB and had taken too much again. His drug use continues, and his manic episodes are becoming more frequent as a result.

He has fallen into a pattern of non-stop talking about anything that interests him for prolonged periods of time, and then regularly and viciously accusing me of not taking "30 seconds" for him to show me something because he is "not important and [I] hate him." Often it is centered around Elon Musk, technology, or what he has bought or plans to buy on Amazon. If I do not match his enthusiasm or if question the necessity of the purchases, he becomes agitated and will try again to engage me and explain. He will do it over and over and then gets highly agitated. This has become repeat behavior and has escalated to the point where I feel threatened, and I am afraid to physically move, for fear of it becoming physical. I cannot leave the room without having him follow me to continue to reengage and prove his point while he tells me that I am "Satan" and "evil."

I do not feel safe, I cannot exit these conversations without repercussions for not giving him the attention he demands on his topic of choice when he demands it. This is a constant pattern in the home and escalates constantly. Not even when I try multiple times to excuse myself.

Jason has grown increasingly agitated and aggressive, particularly when I ask him about his drug use and his constant spending. He is having manic episodes, and I cannot reason with him at all.

Jason's manic behavior includes staying up most nights, active and walking around the house through all hours of the night. During that time, Jason rearranges items on the kitchen countertop, organizes cabinets, and does this over and over again. During this behavior, I am kept awake and unable to sleep. I am unable to stop this behavior without fear of physical reaction from Jason. This is not behavior that any functioning person can live with and maintain their health and a job.

Most recently, Jason's behavior has now become paranoid as well as threatening. On Thursday night, December 12, 2024, I returned from a business trip and found Jason angry. It felt different than other times in that he seemed to not be in control of himself. I was in my office sitting on the floor with open file medical files, situated between my desk and the filing cabinet toward the back of the room. My dog Katie was behind me in her bed. Unprovoked, he yelled for what I would estimate 35-40 minutes, accusing me of a myriad of things, red in the face, and pacing back and forth, and periodically name calling while he belittled me. Jason had made remarks that led me to believe that he was tracking me and that he had been keeping tabs on me in a way that was not comfortable. I realized I did not have access to the office door and decided to stay quiet and nod until it was over. I was very scared. I wanted to sleep in the office with my door locked but he insisted I go up to our bedroom.

After that episode I made a decision to leave the home. I no longer feel safe in the home, and I am unable to protect myself while he is there. In the morning, he did not approach me until I brought my suitcase downstairs. I went into my office to grab a last item before leaving, and he stood in my office doorway, barring the way out. He immediately became agitated. He started accusing me of irrational things, such as being ungrateful of the time he had spent choosing Christmas gifts. He became increasingly upset and I started to get scared. Like the night before, something felt different and more threatening. I managed to get out of the office. My goal was to get safely out of the house.

Upon careful inspection of my laptop, I found that a keystroke software program had been installed in early December on my Mac. Upon further review, I found that he had deleted the files from my computer that were important. More digging on my Mac showed that he had put an AirTag in my car, which he did early Friday morning when I could not find him in the house, and accidentally surprised him in the garage. It was clear to me that he was fiddling around with something in my car, which he never drives, and we never drive in together. He told me he was looking for "a cable."

Jason continues to intimidate and threaten me and has most recently informed me that he will continue this behavior. On the evening of December 16, 2024, Jason sent a text that he would not allow me to have time on my own in the house. He stated that any entrance in our home would be monitored by him and his friends.

I am frightened enough that I am living out of a suitcase with nowhere to go. I am afraid and I believe that the escalation in name calling, increasingly aggressive and now threatening talk and stalking behaviors will become violent. I have now realized that Jason has been digitally stalking and tracking me, whether I am in the home or not. I am deeply concerned that despite my best efforts to remove spyware on my Mac and disconnect shared apps on my phone and similar items, he is unrelenting in his efforts to know my whereabouts and keep track of what I am up to.

The constant verbal abuse along with my fear of physical harm has resulted me getting physically sick from lack of sleep and stress. Jason's constant manic behavior has caused me so much stress and fear that I am unable to function properly at work. I am afraid to go home, and I do not have friends or family to stay with and feel safe.

I declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct.

Executed on December 17, 2024.
